GIRLS OF IRELAND.

There are pretty scenes in Ireland,
From Wicklow's magic vales
To where the sweet meandering Moy
Divides Tyrone's dales;
There are flow'rs all o'er the meadows,
There's honey in her trees,
But the pretty girls of Ireland
Are fairer far than these.

There are charming scenes in Ireland—
Killarney's lakes and fells—
Her parks, her woods, her mountains,
Her deep, romantic dells;
Fair Cork's delightful river,
And then, O sweet Adare,
But the charming girls of Ireland
Are fifty times as fair.

There are noble scenes in Ireland,
From Mourne to proud Mulree,
From Corrib's waves to Varty's stream,
All sparkling, pure and free;
Oh, crystal are her fountains,
That laugh by night and day,
But the high-souled girls of Ireland
Are purer far than they.

Notable among the social events of the week was the reception and entertainment given Thursday night by Miss Mary Ridge to a party of her friends and relatives at her home on East Broadway. After the rendition of an excellent and artistic vocal and instrumental programme a bounteous repast was enjoyed by the assembled guests.

Mrs. John J. Martin left Monday for her home in Rochester. After a delightful home coming visit of three weeks with her sister, Mrs. William M. Higgins, 1530 West Madison street, and Mrs. Thomas D. Despite his great age he is hale and hearty and an interesting conversationalist.

Will Swift, the groom, is a son of John Swift and one of the best known L. & N. firemen running out of Louisville. After the honeymoon the happy couple will begin housekeeping in a cozy home that is being prepared for them.

MICHAEL, THE ARCHANGEL

St. Michael, the archangel, is honored in the church's calendar by two feast days—on May 8 and on September 29. He is honored above all the other angels because God himself has distinguished him above all others, and because he is united with us by special bonds as the great protector of the universal church. In every age, in every clime, great honor has been paid to him. The numberless altars and churches dedicated to him, the many confraternities bearing his name, the various devotions practiced in his honor, all give testimony to the love and confidence the church has ever entertained for the glorious archangel. And this unswerving confidence in St. Michael's patronage is well founded. For his extraordinary sanctity places him near to the throne of God, the source of every blessing; his valor and power make him dreadful to the enemies of our salvation; his love of God makes him ever ready to lead us wandering children back to the home of our affectionate Father.

BE ALERT.

Many young men miss their chance to rise in the world because they are not ready for the next step up when the opportunity comes. As long as we are satisfied with just enough knowledge or skill to perform the work in hand, we shall never rise any higher. Those who have fitted themselves for a sphere of larger usefulness by diligent study and careful preparation usually get the opportunity sooner or later.

IMPRESSIVE CEREMONIES

Marked the Sixtieth Anniversary of Rev. Dean Faller.

With impressive and brilliant ceremonies the Rev. Father E. M. Faller, the venerable pastor of St. Mary's church in New Albany, celebrated the sixtieth anniversary of his entrance into the holy priesthood. This rare and solemn observance was attended by many church dignitaries of Indiana and adjoining States, together with at least a hundred visiting clergymen.

The services began with the Pontifical high mass, the church being thronged to its utmost capacity and presenting a scene of brilliancy seldom seen, the edifice being ablaze with myriads of lights and tasteful decorations. Bishop Chatard preached the sermon, and an address was also delivered by Hon. Alexander Dowling, former Judge of the Indiana Supreme Court. Others who preached and spoke during the celebration and banquet were Bishop O'Donoghue, of Indianapolis, and Rev. Father Roell, of Richmond, formerly assistant rector. All had kind words for the aged jubilarian, who is almost idolized by the entire people of Southern Indiana. The banquet that took place at St. Edward's Hospital was a notable one and lasted several hours.

The programme prepared for the occasion was participated in by Misses Lula May Kraft, Louise Kannapp, Edith Endris, Mollie Weinmann and Mrs. Charles Lentle, together with the full choir of St. Mary's church. Frank Zoeller was the director of the musical programme, Prof. Matthias Merl acting as accompanist.

BADLY BURNED.

Mary Brady, the little daughter of W. J. Brady, the Seventh-street plumber, sustained painful injuries on the evening of the Fourth. With her playmates she was celebrating with fireworks, which severely burned her hands and face. She was given prompt attention, and it is not probable that any serious results will follow.

THEY WILL HELP.

The Nonpareil Dancing Club will have charge of the dancing pavilion at Fontaine Ferry Park on July 14, the day set apart for the benefit of the Newsboys' Home, for which 2,000 invitations have been issued. The Mackin Social Club will also assist, and the Prestonia Club, the Premier Dancing Club and the Amigo Club have been invited and will attend. It is intended in a way to be a reunion of the patrons and friends of the Nonpareil and the other clubs, and a very attractive musical programme is promised.

FONTAINE FERRY PARK.

Papinta, the beautiful "myriad dancer," will top the bill at the theater at Fontaine Ferry Park next week, and at every performance half a dozen dances will be given, each prettier than the one preceding it. The Hopkins' bill is a notable one, and includes the best in dancing, music, comedy and vocalism. A striking feature will be the Kinodrome pictures reproducing the attack on Fort Boonesboro at Cherokee Park during home coming week. Cook's band will continue the concerts in the park, and next Friday night there will be another skating contest at the roller rink.

HINTS ON STYLE.

Dotted materials are now fancied for children's frocks.

Linen has usurped some of the popularity of pique and duck.

Bands of Swiss insertion or of embroidered linen are popular trimmings for checks and plaids.

Straps to hold baby in carriage or high chair are made of silk or linen, embroidered, bound with ribbon and leather and finished with ribbon and gilt or pearl buckles.

For coat and skirt, or cloth or silk gowns, girdles to match or in black and white are used. While many of these are shaped, they are not so high in the back as last season.

Fine Scotch gingham is an excellent material for children. In softness and finish it is far ahead of its old standards and where it was once made in one shade it is now made in a score.

Some nice little models for children in blue, green, yellow and white tartan are trimmed in narrow stitched bands of plain white linen or pique and trimmed additionally in small, white pearl buttons.

The modern baby has his own clothes hamper, a decorative affair, enameled white and tied with big blue or pink bows. Some of the hampers have paneled sides painted with nursery rhymes or baby pictures.

Padded clothes hangers, covered with pink or blue ribbon and productions in miniature of the pretty coat and bodice hangers made for women, are used for baby's cloaks and dresses that must not be crushed or rumpled.

For stout features girdles with flat attached pieces front and back, stiffened with canvas and simply trimmed with buttons, the bias silk being drawn down in plaits or held by stitching at the sides, always proves becoming.

Shirtings are less pronounced, while ribbon laces through crocheted rings are distinctly "in" once more. Narrow ribbon and small buttons, by the way, are features of almost of the silk girdles, with corded tucks a close second.

Tinsel belts—the better quality—still are popular for wear with suits. Beautiful, indeed, was one with dull purple and pink flowers woven in the gold cloth, the belt fastening with a butterfly of unburnished hammered French gold.

One good-looking sash of black moire was laid in flat plaits with a bias seam in the centre of the front. The back was fastened under two flat, rather small rosettes made of satin baby ribbon, held in the centre with steel buckles. The long ends were finished all around with a knife pleating of black tulle.
